Setti Warren: Regional Director, Region I

Setti Warren was appointed Regional Director of FEMA's Region I by President Clinton in March 2000. As Regional Director, Mr. Warren's responsibilities include FEMA prevention, preparedness, training and response and recovery activities in six states: Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island.

Prior to joining FEMA, Mr. Warren served as a White House official in the Office of Cabinet Affairs. He acted as liaison to cabinet agencies on policy, press and budget issues. He has worked in the White House since 1996. Previously he was a training coordinator and consultant in Boston, where he designed and implemented job training programs for low-income adults.

A native of New England, Mr. Warren holds a bachelor's degree in art and history from Boston College. Warren was the founding member and mentor/coach of The 1000 Black Men of Massachusetts program that assists inner city black males.
